WAR NEWS.

(Special to Shanghai Mercury)

BOMBARDMENT OF TUNGCHOW.

We have received no news from our Chefoo correspondent relating to the war in the North, but a gentleman has kindly sent us the following telegrams received by him:—

CHEFOO, January 19th.

Chinese report that the Japanese men-of-war were bombarding Tungchow yesterday. The report of heavy firing of guns can be heard now in that direction.

Later.

The bombardment of Tungchow by the Japanese is confirmed. The U.S. man-of-war Yorktown and English man-of-war Daphne are leaving for that place.

January 20th.

The Japanese are landing soldiers sixty miles east of Chefoo. It is snowing heavily.

YOKOHAMA, January 20th.

A telegram from Haicheng, dated midnight on the 17th inst. states as follows:—General Katsura reports that the Chinese who were previously reported advancing from Liaoyang, and another force of Chinese from the direction of Newchwang, numbering altogether about 12,000, with one hundred banners, on the forenoon of the 17th instant, approached within two kilometres of the Japanese lines of defence. The Japanese troops kept well under cover, hoping that the Chinese would approach nearer, but as they did not, at two in the afternoon the Japanese opened fire with four battalions of infantry, and one battalion of artillery with twelve guns. Firing was actively kept up until three o'clock, when the Japanese made a charge which the Chinese could not withstand, so were thoroughly routed. The right wing of the Japanese army captured five cannon. The whole Chinese force then retreated, most of them fleeing to the northward, and part went in the direction of Newchwang. The Japanese closely pursued the Chinese until sunset, when the former halted. The Japanese casualties are forty-one killed. At the time the telegram left the Japanese were examining the Chinese loss, which will be sent later on.

GENERAL NOZU.

General Nozu has arrived at Haicheng.

(Special to N. C. Daily News.)

CHEFOO, January 20th.

Three Japanese men-of-war bombarded Tungchow-fu on Friday the 18th, and troops assaulted the forts on Saturday the 19th.

To-day (Sunday), 25,000 troops landed in Yungching Bay, and fifty transports were seen off the coast. The earthworks were silenced by three Japanese men-of-war.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

 TO-MORROW, being Chinese New Year's Day, there will be no issue of the Hongkong Telegraph.

THE death was recently reported of T'an Chün-pei, Governor of Yünnan, and acting Governor-General of Yünnan and Kueichow.

WE take this opportunity of heartily wishing our numerous Chinese readers and friends a happy and prosperous New Year i.e. kung hi fa tchoy

AN attack by the Chinese in force against the Japanese entrenchments at Hatcheng is stated to have been made on the 17th instant. The Chinese were driven off.

A SHANGHAI contemporary states that on the 21st inst. the steamer Paohuo was still hard and fast ashore in Nanking Reach. Although in no danger she was not expected to float for six weeks.

OUR readers will not forget that the clever Chicago Tourist Minstrel Company make their first and only appearance in the Theatre Royal, City Hall, to-morrow night. Smiling begins at 9 o'clock.

IN anticipation of an attack by the Japanese on Wei-hai-wei, the commander of the Russian man-of-war Kraysser, at Shanghai, received telegraphic orders from the Admiral on the 18th inst. to proceed to sea and watch the operations.

THERE will be some interesting training gallops at the Race-course to-morrow morning and forenoon, which will probably give some indication of future events, which in the racing world do not always cast their shadows before. They will be fully dealt with in our next issue.

TELEGRAPHIC news was received in Shanghai from Chefoo on the 20th inst. that heavy firing was heard from the north-west, and it was subsequently ascertained that the Japanese were bombarding Tungchow-fu. The war-ships Daphne and Yorktown left Chefoo to watch the proceedings.

THE semi-final heat of the billiard handicap at the City Club will be played this evening, commencing at 9 o'clock, Mr. A. H. Skelton, owing 160, meeting Mr. W. Boffey, who owes 120. This should be a splendid match, both players being about the smartest exponents of the game in the colony. The winner will meet Mr. C. P. Adamson in the final.

THE following Imperial edict, telegraphed to the Sinwan Pao, was issued on the 13th instant:—General Sung Ching reports that Kaiping was taken by the enemy on the 19th instant, and asks that punishment be awarded to him and to Lieutenant Chang Ku-yuen and Chan Pang-tao. As these two lieutenants did not show bravery at the attack, they are handed over to the Board of Punishments, as is General Sung Ching for not making such arrangements as would assure the safety of Kaiping

SAYS the New York Maritime Register:—"The moment is rapidly approaching when the European Powers will proceed actively to secure some gain or themselves out of the Chino-Japanese struggle. The United States have really the best opportunity to gain commercial advantages through the present complications, provided they are not humbugged out of the case by British diplomacy." This is truly awful rubbish from the leading shipping journal in the United States. American commercial interests and influence in the Far East have for years past been 'a back number,' and no journalistic twaddle can alter the fact.

ACCORDING to an edict of the 14th instant Yung Tê has been appointed Tartar-General of Kuldja, and another decree of the same date commands Shen Chin-siang, Provincial Treasurer of Kan-su, to resign his post and proceed to Peking to await further orders.

THE gross and unwarranted intrusion of the Rifle Brigade (The Prince Consort's Own) in the Happy Valley during training hours this morning will be dealt with in Monday's Telegraph. This alleged "Swell" regiment will be none the worse for a short sermon on commonsense and good taste.

THE steamer Pechili returned to Shanghai on the 19th instant from the wreck of the Taiwo, bringing the captain, officers, engineers and crew. Since then, it is said, the wreck has been surrounded by boats, the occupants of which have swarmed on board and helped themselves to everything they could carry away.

THE Japanese paper Shygo Shimpo notes that a considerable increase has taken place in the amount of silver yen struck in the Imperial Japanese Mint last year. From April to December silver yen were minted to the amount of 19,680,000 yen, against 11,794,216 pieces in the whole of the preceding year, which amount was the largest since the opening of the Mint. This increase is attributed to the war, which absorbs a considerable amount of silver coin.

AT the Magistracy to-day, Mr. H. E. Wodehouse continued the enquiry into the circumstances connected with the recent fire at No. 337, Queen's Road West. Mr. G. C. C. Master appeared on behalf of the Northern Insurance Co., of which Messrs. Bradley & Co. are the local agents, Mr. E. Robinson representing the master of the tea shop, which was insured for $4,000. Several jokis of the shop were examined, after which the enquiry was further adjourned till next Friday, the 1st proximo, at 10.30 a.m.

SPECIAL telegrams from the North, received in Shanghai, state that General Liu, commander of the Ming division and nephew of the ex-Governor of Formosa, Liu Ming-ch'uan, has been deprived of his command for cowardice and allowing his troops to pillage the country, which, with the exception of misappropriating the soldiers' pay, and the same charges precisely as those which caused General Wei Ju-kuei of the Shan-hai division to lose his head. The Ming division of 6,000 men is now commanded conjointly by Generals Chiang and Ch'eng, two of the runaway commanders at Port Arthur, who sought refuge with General Sung's army.

D'ARC'S MARIONETTES will again be in evidence to-night in the cosy little Theatre on the Praya Reclamation, and as their season is rapidly drawing to a close, those who have not witnessed this most excellent entertainment should not lose the opportunity. To-morrow the last afternoon performance will be given, and we note that, as a souvenir gift, a handsome French doll will be given away to the child lucky enough to draw the winning number. A specially attractive programme is announced for to-morrow night, and on Monday and Tuesday the clever sisters D'Arc take farewell benefits, which we trust will be extensively patronised by all who appreciate deserving merit and conspicuous ability.

A DISGRACEFUL case of military larrikinism occurred in China-town yesterday afternoon, and resulted in a "brave" being locked up and fined $5 at the Police Court this morning. From the evidence led to-day at the Police Court it appeared that a gunner of the Royal Artillery, named Patrick Conner, got a little "on" yesterday and while in that condition took a large piece of sugar-cane off a hawker's stall in Jubilee Street and belaboured a number of inoffensive Chinamen with it. Then he wanted to give P. C. McEwen a "dressing down" with his weapon, but the latter proved the better man of the two, and the gallant British soldier was locked up and had the cool impertinence to plead as an excuse that he "didn't know nuffink about it." He knows now, though, and wont forget for a while to come.

SAINT Alfred S. Dyer, of social purity notoriety, finds a worthy disciple in the comic pietist who edits the Daily Press. He reminds us of the pure-minded gospel spouter who recently startled a Syndey, N.S.W., congregation with the following choice morceau:—"You can't stand and dance half through the night and on into the early morning with more or less naked women. You can't, you can't stand it. Don't be a fool," for in the course of his remarks on St. George's Ball, published to-day (!), this weak-minded individual wrote himself down a first-class ass thusly:—

> The verandahs were as usual closed in and along the south verandah a row of little boxes had been erected just large enough to accommodate a single couple and closely screened off by curtains of flags which admitted nothing more than a glimpse of the occupants' feet from the promenade. These little nooks were evidently much appreciated and were fully occupied between each dance, but, if a word of criticism may be allowed, the close seclusion was just a trifle too suggestive of Cremorne to be altogether in keeping with the character of the entertainment.

It takes a first-class social purity crank to properly enact the part of the man with the muck-rake. The diseased imagination of a dirty latter-day religionist wills mull out more uncleanness in a week than the average man runs across in the whole course of his life. Christianity, and all that was clean and holy and nice once dwelt in "temples not made with hands;" now it dwelleth away down in the gutter. Honi soit qui mal y pense!

SAYS the New York Maritime Register:—The English ship Glenesslin, which sailed from New York on December 4th, for Hongkong, is an example of what prompt and excellent work in repairs to iron vessels can be made at the port of New York. The Glenesslin was badly injured by fire, which broke out in her after hold on the night of September 28th, and as she was about half filled with petroleum in cases, it was deemed necessary to fill and sink her at her berth to prevent greater injury. The fire had made good headway and had destroyed her cabin and its fittings, as well as warping a number of beams, stanchions and plates. Her deck and woodwork were also badly damaged. The Ross Iron Works Company contracted to repair her and have her ready for loading in 28 days from the time she reached their works at Brooklyn, N.Y. She was towed there on October 29th, and the work of repairing her commenced immediately, and in 16 days time, being 7 days less than the time specified in the contract, she was delivered to her agents ready to begin reloading. In addition to the repairs to her hull she was dock'd and painted throughout. Captain W. T. Pritchard, who commands her and Mr. J. H. Crocker of Liverpool, who superintended the repairs in the interests of her owners, Messrs. C. E. De Wolf & Co. of Liverpool, are well pleased with the prompt and excellent work done on the vessel. Mr. James McCaldin, the manager of the Ross Iron Works, also receives his share of the credit due on the despatch given the Glenesslin. Captain Matthew Jackson, late chief officer of the Cunard steamship Etruria, is manager of the Ross Iron Works.

SIX dollars, with the customary alternative, was the penalty inflicted by Mr. Hastings at the Police Court this morning on the master of the steam-launch Wo-shun, for obstructing Bank Wharf. He paid up.

THE Wanchai stabbing case, particulars of which appeared in our columns recently, again came up before Mr. Hastings at the Police Court this morning, and was further adjourned till 10.30 a.m. on the 28th instant. Drs. Lowson and Bell have been subpœnaed to give evidence.

THE Nagasaki Rising Sun reports that the steamer Kosuge Maru, a large wooden vessel built alongside the Slip at Kosuge some years ago, previous to the Dock and Engine Works being taken over by the Mitsu Bishi Co., has become a wreck, having grounded on a reef in the vicinity of the Naju group of islands on the 27th ult., and afterwards drifted on Gyok Island, where she was abandoned.

LIU K'UN-YI, the new Commander-in-Chief of the Imperial armies in Chihli, Shangtung and Manchuria, has, according to telegrams from reliable sources, received in Shanghai on the 20th inst. obtained the Emperor's sanction to remain at Peking until after the Chinese New Year, in order to perfect his arrangements for the campaign of the ensuing spring. It is anticipated that the 15,000 Hunan veterans under Generals Wan and Li, recently ordered up from the Liangkiang provinces, and the 8,000 Honan and Shantung cavalry from Honan and Shantung, now en route for Tientsin, will be able to reach that place by the middle of February, and that this will be the signal for the Generalissimo to leave the capital and start for the front. The forces that will be at his disposal are roughly computed as follows:—130,000 Chinese infantry and 10,000 cavalry; 15,000 Manchu infantry and 8,000 cavalry; 22,000 Mohammedan infantry and 7,000 cavalry; and 18,000 Mongol cavalry; or a total of 167,000 foot and 43,000 horse. The above, says the N. C. Daily News—to which journal we are indebted for the foregoing details—are official figures, but experience tells us that if we take off a good third it will be nearer right than wrong.

ONE of the meanest "dead beats" that has visited the Colony since that contemptible swindler the "Reverend" Byron Wilson was sent into retirement for twelve months, is undoubtedly a biped named R. H. Wilson (strange, these mean impostors revel in the name of Wilson) who arrived here from "India's coral strand," Bombay, we believe, about three weeks ago and put up at the Hongkong Hotel at the rate of $1 per diem, although all the money he had when he came ashore was $65, borrowed from an engineer on the steamer he "bummed" a passage in. He arrived here on the 2nd January and between that date and the 22nd, when he vanished, leaving an empty box in the hotel, borrowed in small sums upwards of $60 and in addition to letting in one or two casual acquaintances who were foolish enough to sign "chits" for him, he "stuck" a poor hard-working Chinese tailor for $25, the value of an overcoat which he ordered shortly after his arrival here. He told a lot of "friends" that he was an Inspector of the Burma Police Force on leave, and that he was the son of a Commander in the Queen's Navee. That may be true enough, but it was probably a lie. However, that he's a "daisy" there can, we think, be no possible or even probable shadow of doubt whatever.

THE ENGLISH CARNIVAL.

"One ancient word of courage, fair 'St. George,'
"Inspires us with the spleen of fiery dragons."

Shakspere.

The ball given by the English residents of the Colony at the City Hall on Wednesday evening was a fitting sequel of the memorable display made by the followers of the guid Sanct Andrew two months ago, and it was carried out on a scale of liberality and magnificence alike worthy the object in view—reciprocity for the oft-repeated hospitality of the St. Andrew's Society—and the importance attached to the revival, in a British colony, of interest in England's patron Saint Day. Why the interest in St. Andrew's day should, in recent years, have eclipsed that evinced by Englishmen in the "Red Cross Knight," immortalised by Spenser in his "Faëry Queen," and whose pedigree is traceable as far back as 23rd April, A.D. 303, when he was beheaded by order of Datianus, is one of those strange conundrums that will probably never be satisfactorily answered, but it is nevertheless a pleasing sign of the times that leading Englishmen, not only in Hongkong but in various other parts of the world, have of late years shown considerable ability in resuscitating the patriotism of their countrymen, many of whom will doubtless be interested in the following biographical sketch of the noble martyr in honour of whose memory last Wednesday's never-to-be-forgotten carnival was held:—

That St. George was a veritable character is beyond all reasonable doubt, and there seems no reason to deny that he was born in Armorica, and was beheaded in Diocletian's persecution by order of Datainus, April 23rd, 303. St. Jerome (331-420) mentions him in one of his martyrologies; in the next century there were many churches erected in his honour. St. Gregory (540-604") has in his Sacramentary a "Preface for St. George's Day;" and the Venerable Bede (672-735) in his martyrology says, "at last St. George truly finished his martyrdom by decapitation, although the gests of his passion are numbered among the apocryphal writings." In regard to his connection with England, Ashmole, in his "History of the Order of the Garter," says that King Arthur in the sixth century placed the picture of St. George on his banners; and Selden tells us he was patron saint of England in the Saxon times. It is quite certain that the Council of Oxford in 1222 commanded his festival to be observed in England as a holiday of lesser rank; and in 1330 he was adopted as the patron of the Order of the Garter. The dragon slain by St George is simply a common allegory to express the triumph of the Christian hero over evil, which John the Evangelist beheld under the image of a dragon. Similarly, St. Michael, St. Margaret, St. Silvester, and St. Martha are all depicted as slaying dragons; the Saviour and the Virgin as treading them under their feet; and St. John the Evangelist as charming a winged dragon from a poisoned chalice given him to drink. Even John Bunyan avails himself of the same figure, when he makes Christian encounter Apollyon and prevail against him.

The Red Cross Knight (in Spenser's "Faëry Queen," bk. I.) represents "Piety." He starts with Una (Truth) on his adventures, and is driven into a Wandering Wood, where he encounters Error, and passes the night with Una in Hypocrisy's cell. Being visited by a false vision, the knight abandons Una, and goes with Duessa (False-faith) to the palace of Pride. He leaves this palace clandestinely, but being overtaken by Duessa, is persuaded to drink of an enchanted fountain, when he becomes paralysed, and is taken captive by Orgoglio. Una informs Arthur of the sad event, and the prince goes to the rescue. He slays Orgoglio, and the Red Cross Knight being set free, is taken by Una to the house of Holiness to be healed. On leaving Holiness, both Una and the knight journey towards Eden. As they draw near, the dragon porter flies at the knight, and St. George has to do battle with it for three whole days before he succeeds in slaying it. The dragon being slain, the two enter Eden, and the Red Cross Knight is united to Una in the bonds of holy matrimony.

According to the ballad given in Percy's "Reliques," St. George was the son of Lord Albert of Coventry. His mother died in giving him birth, and the new-born babe was stolen away by the weird lady of the woods, who brought him up to deeds of arms. His body had three marks: a dragon on the breast, a garter round one of the legs, and a blood-red cross on the arm. When he grew to manhood he first fought against the Saracens, and then went to Sylene, a city of Libya, where was a stagnant lake infested by a huge dragon, whose poisonous breath "had many a city slain," and whose hide "no spear nor sword could pierce." Every day a virgin was sacrificed to it, and at length it came to the lot of Sabra, the king's daughter, to become its victim. She was tied to the stake and left to be devoured, when St. George came up, and vowed to take her cause in hand. On came the dragon, and St. George thrusting his lance into its mouth, killed it on the spot. The king of Morocco and the king of Egypt, unwilling that Sabra should marry a Christian, sent St. George to Persia, and directed the "sophy" to kill him. He was accordingly thrust into a dungeon, but making good his escape, carried off Sabra to England, where she became his wife, and they lived happily together at Coventry till their death.

The Hellespont is so called by the Catholic Church in honour of St. George, the patron saint of England. An arm of the Atlantic, separating Ireland from Great Britain, is so called in honour of St. George.

St. George's Day (April 23), a day of deception and oppression. It was the day when new leases and contracts used to be made. St. George is the patron of soldiers.

It is not necessary to go further into the history, ancient as it is, of good St. George, suffice it to say that the reason for the celebration being fixed for the 23rd January is not quite clear, seeing that, according to various authorities, St. George's Day falls on the 23rd April. But, however that may be—and it is only a technical difference, if any, at the most—it matters not, and as far as the climatic conditions under which the ball was held were concerned a better day than the 23rd January could not have been fixed. Indeed, so fine was the weather that one might almost be tempted to imagine that the erratic and oftimes exasperating Clerk of the Weather is "running" for a C.M.G.-ship! Under the circumstances there were no drawbacks to a large attendance and thorough success being secured by the organizers, foremost among whom was Mr. E. J. Ackroyd, Acting Chief Justice and Chairman of the General Committee, who, ably seconded by Mr. E. W. Mitchell, the Hon. Secretary, is to be heartily congratulated on the splendid results achieved, which will leave a lasting and favourable impression on the minds of all who had the opportunity of being present at St. George's Ball.

Of the decorations we cannot speak too highly, neither does the space at our command permit of as lengthy a description of them as they undoubtedly merited. The entrance hall, lit by electricity chiefly, was one mass of flowers, ferns and vari-coloured lanterns, while the pillars were festooned with evergreens, the tout ensemble being very effective. The staircase was draped with red cloth, and at intervals were groups of chrysanthemums and other flowers, which formed a charming contrast to the dark foliage in the background. On the first landing brass mortars were partially hidden in clusters of plants and ferns surmounted by a St. George's Cross in the form of a shield, and a magnificent copy (the handiwork of Mr. A. Baptista) the famous picture of St. George and the Dragon. St. George's Hall was lighted entirely, and very successfully, by electricity, the innovation proving an unqualified, and highly appreciated, success, for apart from the fact of the temperature of the apartment being thereby reduced to normal, it enabled the gentlemen responsible for the decorations to drape the elegant chandeliers with vari-coloured ribbons in a manner that set off the Hall more effectively than it has ever been before. At the upper, or south, end of the room was the Royal Standard and coat-of-arms, while the windows and doorways were draped chiefly with English flags surmounted by shields and electric lights—fitted up, we believe by Mr. C. T. Robinson of the Hongkong Electric Light Company. St. Andrew's Hall presented no specially attractive features, and was lit by gas. It was, however, very prettily decorated for the occasion, while the ante-room, where the art of the electrical engineer was much in evidence, was very neatly draped and as bright as the sun at noon-day. Instead of having hard and uncomfortable benches along the verandahs the Committee had erected neat little alcoves which were a distinct improvement on previous arrangements of this nature, and reflected considerable credit on the Committee of Management. En passant, it may be added that we note the Daily Press indulges in about the coarsest, most suggestive and meanest criticism of this innovation that it is possible for any sane man to imagine. But that sort of thing is characteristic of our feeble and evil-minded contemporary, who evidently forgot the motto honi soit qui mal y pense when he stated "the close seclusion was just a trifle too suggestive of Cremorne!" Perhaps the Editor of the Daily Press is one of those latter-day saints who appear to find delving into the quagmire of social impurities a pleasant pastime! But whether or not his imputations are alike a disgrace to the author of them and an insult to the general public, and to the painstaking Committee of Management in particular.

To the gentlemen who formed the various Committees the hearty thanks of the guests are undoubtedly due, while the excellent services of the Bands also deserve special acknowledgment.

Taken altogether St George's Ball was one of the most successful "hops" ever held in the Colony and upon the pronounced success achieved we heartily congratulate Mr. Ackroyd and all who were associated with him.

It is worthy of note that Wednesday night's ball was probably the last function of the kind at which Mr. Justice Ackroyd will preside in the colony, for the reason that he will shortly retire from the Colonial Service after a long, meritorious and honourable career. Major-General Digby-Barker, too, who was the guest of the evening, will probably not be again seen at a public function in Hongkong, as his highly creditable term of service in the Far East is rapidly drawing to a close.

The General and various Sub-Committees were constituted as follows:—Mr. Justice E. J. Ackroyd (Chairman), Mr. E. F. Alford, Dr. P. B. C. Ayres, C.M.G., Commodore Boyes, R.N., Mr. S. G. Bird, Mr. J. THE ACCIDENT TO THE "CITY OF RIO."

Our Nagasaki contemporary of the 16th inst. contains the following interesting account of the accident to the Pacific Mail Co's steamship City of Rio de Janeiro, already briefly reported in our columns:—

Since our last issue further particulars have been received of the serious misfortune which befell the Pacific Mail Co.'s steamship City of Rio de Janeiro, off the coast of the province of Satsuma on the afternoon of Sunday, 6th inst., shortly after passing through Van Dieman's Straits, whilst on the passage from San Francisco to Hongkong, viâ Yokohama and Nagasaki. So far as we can learn, the Rio arrived at Yokohama on the 3rd inst., and left for Nagasaki the following morning, taking the usual course adopted by the Co.'s steamers on this voyage, generally termed the outside passage, which necessitates passing through Van Dieman's Straits, at the southern end of Kiushiu. Everything appears to have gone well until shortly after passing through the Straits, on Sunday, the 6th, when at about 1.35 p.m. she most unexpectedly struck a sunken rock, about two miles from shore. The engines were at once stopped, and every preparation made in an orderly manner for any emergency that might arise.

In the meantime an examination of the ship proved that serious damage had been sustained under water on the starboard side, forward of the foremast, and that water was rushing in to such an extent as to necessitate immediate beaching to prevent the ship sinking. She was at once headed for the shore, and in a short space of time was landed safely on a sandy beach, just below Nomamisaki, whence a messenger was sent overland to Kagoshima, the nearest telegraph station, to the local agent, requesting immediate assistance. The message did not arrive here until Monday at noon, when every possible haste was made to despatch the Mitsu Bishi Co.'s tow-boat Yugao. By midnight, diving gear, pumps, and other things considered necessary under the circumstances, with a number of workmen and overseers, were all on board, and at full speed she started on her errand to assist the disabled ship, which we may here say was lying in a dangerously exposed position, in the event of bad weather. About 7.30 the next morning (Tuesday) the Yugao fell in with a boat from the Rio, bound to Nagasaki in search of assistance, as no reply had been received to the telegraphic message sent on Sunday.

Proceeding on her journey, the Yugao arrived her destination at about 10 a.m., and was received with welcome. Work was at once commenced, and with alacrity worthy of the highest praise, the hole, which was found to be about 15 feet by 4 ft., was temporarily patched up, a 12-in. centrifugal pump got to work, and the ship pumped out and afloat, all in the short space of about seven hours, the credit for which is due to the united efforts of the Mitsu Bishi Co.'s staff and the engineers and officers of the Rio. In the meantime, of course, considerable cargo had been jettisoned out of the forehold; the cargo in the other part of the ship being undamaged, so far as we can learn. At 9 p.m. (Tuesday) it was decided to go in search of a safer place, in which to effect repairs to enable the ship to proceed to Nagasaki without any risk; and after steaming slowly for about 12 hours, a sheltered sandy harbour was found at Iwafune, where she was beached and the work of patching up the hole in her side continued.

Shortly after arriving at Iwafune the Yugao took on board the passengers, mails, and specie, and brought them on to Nagasaki, the latter being in charge of the purser, Mr. Freeman. The passengers consisted of Mrs. A. Sharp and son, Mrs. Wolfe, and Mr. S. F. Fearing, in cabin; also 184 Chinese in steerage. As we mentioned in our last issue, Mr. D. F. Robertson was in attendance on the ship as Lloyds' surveyor, whilst Captain Wilson Walker went down to render any nautical advice and assistance that his knowledge of the local coast might enable him to do. The rock on which the Rio struck is well known to Japanese mariners as Hotoke-se, and is also reported to be on the British and Japanese admiralty charts, but under what name we cannot say. The Rio arrived here about 8 p.m. on Monday, and yesterday discharging of cargo was commenced, preparatory to her going in dock. As the damage is below the water-line, it is impossible to estimate how long the repairs will occupy until she has been surveyed in dock.

JAPANESE OPERATIONS IN SHANTUNG.

Since our last issue, says the Shanghai Mercury of the 21st inst., news of importance regarding the present war has come to hand. The Japanese have made an attack in force on the peninsula of Eastern Shantung, with the object apparently of capturing the remains of the Peiyang Fleet. True to their ordinary tactics of dividing their forces, and attacking from both sides, they have bombarded the city of Tungchow, while the main body of their troops has been landed in Yungching Bay, close to the North-east Promontory of Shantung. Yungching Bay affords an admirable site for landing, and has the great advantage that it is never obstructed by ice. The Japanese, by this movement, have shown their hands clearly, and it is evident that their main purpose is an attack on Wei-hai-wei. Having this main object in view, the occupation of Tungchow becomes a matter of importance. We imagine that Laichow-fu is the object really aimed at. Laichow commands the approach from the west to Eastern Shantung; between Laichow and Kiaochow extends a level plain formerly occupied by a canal, so that a strong force posted at Laichow can at all times prevent troops being sent overland to Wei-hai-wei, which thus becomes isolated. This fact alone seems to indicate that the Japanese expect that the capture of Wei-hai-wei will be more prolonged than that of Port Arthur. There is no use offering advice to China so long as the present Viceroy of Chihli continues in power. His ever-weaving self-conceit has been the main factor in China's present degradation, and we are certainly not disposed to utter any expression of opinion as to Japanese tactics. Wei-hai-wei will probably fall as did Port Arthur, but we doubt if the end of the present silly war would be materially hastened by the event. Japan is still Japan, and the present contest is being fought out on the same principles as that of three centuries ago. European Powers may look with complacency on the juvenile efforts of "Young Japan." So long as the Government of the Mikado does not interfere with British interests, by all means, let it amuse itself. It doesn't hurt us, but the sooner it is understood that interference with those interests will mean a sharp retribution, the better.

THE SITUATION IN PEKING.

Advices from Peking from reliable sources show that the political condition of the capital is deplorable in the extreme, and that the gravity of the situation, instead of stilling the voice of faction and putting a stop to intrigue, has intensified the one and increased the other. The anti-Li party, a month or two ago, found an energetic leader in Tze Jui one of the leading spirits in the Hanlin College, and the virtual chief of the Li Pu. This official is said to have got at the Imperial ear by means of the two favourite concubines, said to be his daughters, and it was in consequence of his and their representations that Mr. von Hanneken was called to the capital and entrusted with the re-organisation of China's military forces. The Dowager-Empress has checkmated Tze Jui by getting him nominated Governor of some remote district on the Siberian frontier, and marked her disapproval of his kinswomen's action by degrading them officially in the Imperial Household.

The Li faction under this indefatigable lady is again on the top of the wave, but finds increasing difficulty in holding its own, for though Prince Kung, the actual head of the administration, is on the whole favourable to it, he is not a thoroughgoing partisan and is apt to trim. The ignorance and fat optimism of the great officials are working steadily against the Li party. The utter collapse of the military force of the Empire against a power so despised as Japan, is to them perfectly inexplicable on any other ground except Nous sommes trahis,—and as Li's enemies persistently repeat this formula, and point to him as the betrayer, many fair-minded but ignorant high officers are being slowly blessed against the Li party. The edicts summoning nearly all his military nominees to Peking for punishment and the gradual supersession of Li himself, all point to the steady decline of his power. Rightly or wrongly the Peking authorities deemed that Von Hanneken was not a persona grata to the great Viceroy, and hence their attempt to make his efforts and plans quite independent of vicegal control and finance. It is shrewdly suspected that some astute but secret supporter of Li suggested Mr. von Hanneken's association with Hu Yü-fen; the latter was made the nominal head of the re-organising bureau, but was ordered to consult his foreign co-adjutor in everything. In any case the association of incompatible elements, namely foreign skill and native prejudice, is working its inevitable result—dead failure. The colleagues differ on many essential points, and as Hu practically holds the purse strings he has an effective veto on everything the foreigner suggests. Mr. von Hanneken has already enlisted the aid of such foreigners as were available; but the fact that the Tientsin petty officials are keenly trying to hunt up the antecedents of these recruits and are reporting their discoveries in Peking, clearly shows their hostile attitude to the whole scheme.

Peking official opinion is, on the whole, becoming foolishly optimistic again. By some curious means the vapourings of the European press, which treat of China's boundless resources, etc., are being taken as gospel, and the officials think if they can prolong the war for one year, they will not only roll back the tide of invasion but punish the Japanese in turn. Utterly ignorant of the nature of modern war, they think that science and discipline may be overcome by numbers. They are even asserting in many quarters that the new-fangled foreign arms of precision are the primary cause of the Chinese reverses, and several prominent officials have not hesitated to commend that the repeating rifles should be discarded in favour of the ancient Brown Bess, or gingal, requiring two men and four minutes to fire one round.

The Li party is, of course, not so foolish as this; it at least knows the true causes of Japanese success and Chinese failure, and recognises the absolute futility of carrying on the unequal struggle. But their assertion of these causes and their recommendations of peace are at once quoted against them as proofs of their want of patriotism and their incompetence to conduct affairs.—*N. C. KOREAN AFFAIRS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SEOUL, December 18th.

The Tonghaks reign supreme in Hoanghaido. They have allowed the Governor to return to Seoul because he had treated the people kindly, but the military commandant was beaten and has since died. Three of the assistants were burned to death. Report says, I do not know how truthfully, that the Tonghaks have placed one of their leaders, named Chyeng, in the gubernatorial chair. The Tonghaks heretofore have all been in the southern portions of Korea and not in the north, but now the entire province of Hoanghaido is under their control and, furthermore, a body of them are on the road to join their brethren in the south. In the south, also in Chullado, everything is in their own hands. The Governor of Chullado is in hiding.

The appointment of Pak Yong Ho to be Minister of the Home Office has driven a number of the people to unite their forces with the hitherto hated Tonghaks. The appointment of Sye Kwang Pon to be Vice-Minister of Education has also made matters worse, as no Korean, any more than a foreigner, can understand the appointment of rebels, whose hands are dyed with the blood of their kins-people, to some of the highest posts of the country. Sye Cha Pil and Sye Kwang Pon, two of the ex-rebels, have returned from America by the last Higo and already one, as mentioned above, has been appointed to office.

January 1st.

In Chohakou the Chinese troops were dispersed, 20 of the Japanese soldiers being killed and 100 of the bandits. Ten of the latter were also taken prisoners. In Hoanghaido the Tonghaks killed two Japanese.—Chosen Shimbun.

Three Japanese advisors have been appointed; one for the Police Department, one for the Treasury, and one for the Military Board. This is one step in advance as far as Korea is concerned, and there is no doubt but that the so-called reforms which are being forced on this unwilling but helpless country will go on apace. In the south matters are going on as usual, the Tonghaks one side and the Japanese on the other. The Korean soldiers who were supposed to aid the Japanese have all been sent back to Seoul and the Japanese have undertaken the task of dispersing the Tonghaks themselves. A number of straggling Japanese have been killed by the people, but how many is not yet known.

The wife and daughter of Kim-Ok-Kiun have returned from the south, where they have been acting as slaves in the yamên (This is the punishment meted out to the female part of the household of all rebels.) They are now stopping in the house of Pak Yang Ho, the associate of the notorious Kim Pak. Yang Ho still remains in the Japanese settlement closely guarded, but there is not much doubt that he will sooner or later be assassinated by some means or other. Assassination is hardly a commendable way of getting rid of objectionable individuals, but there is no doubt that if anyone deserves it these two men do, as their hands are stained with the blood of more than one helpless man.

On the winter equinox the King was supposed to go in procession (à la Japonnaise, riding on a pony) to the temple of his ancestors and announce to them his independence as well as his wish to carry out reforms in the Government in future. The sacrifices were all prepared and every thing was in readiness, but the King did not appear. It was afterwards announced that he had had a dream in which his ancestors, as well as the spirits of Heaven and Earth, chided him in no mild manner and expressed their decided disapprobation of any reformatory measure or independence. And here matters rest. The King is ill, being laid up by ophthalmia or something like it.

January 6th.

The New Korea, the Japanese newspaper published in Seoul, contains a long article on Chinese merchants and trade, saying that "Japan at a great cost has wrested from the Chinese the entire trade of Korea, but of late a large number of Chinese are returning and they must not by any means be allowed to supplant Japan in the future." There is no doubt but that the Japanese mean to keep the Chinese out of Korea if possible, either by fair means or foul; what steps they will take remains to be seen. Yesterday morning Mr. Uchida, the Consul-General in Seoul, left with a number of his assistants and surveyors to survey the new settlement at Mokpo in Chullado. There seems no doubt but that two new ports will be opened in Mokpo and at Pingyang. Just when is not exactly known, but several trips have already been made by the Japanese authorities, and no doubt in the spring something definite will be done.

The Hairyong, a Korean steamer, has just returned from taking stores up to the First Army at Wiju on the Korean frontier. The men bring back vivid accounts of the sufferings of the soldiers from the cold as well as from sickness.

A new Japanese consul for Chemulpo has arrived by the Higo. He was formerly Consul in San Francisco.

A number of Japanese soldiers have just left by the Hairyong for the south of Korea to grapple with the Tonghaks. The Tonghaks are a very disturbing factor in the reform of Korea. They are dispersed in one place only to re-appear elsewhere, and there is no doubt that before the end comes they will cause a great deal of trouble. Kim Kat Nam, their supposed King, is reputed to have been captured, and rumour says that another King by the name of Chyeng has been appointed. All the reports from the south, however, cannot be relied upon. Only one thing is certain, and that is that about a month ago a body of Japanese troops went overland to the south and have succeeded in ridding a few districts of Tonghaks, but after several battles, or rather skirmishes, it was deemed necessary to reinforce them.—N. C. Daily News.

NOTES FROM TSINGKIANGPU.

The correspondent of our Shanghai morning contemporary writes as follows:—

When one reads of the excitement in Japan over the war, and when one thinks of the interest foreign nations take in such great events, it is nothing short of amusing to see what little interest the average Chinaman takes in the great crisis through which this country is now passing. They talk a little of the war, but what matters it practically so long as business continues on the streets and the rice crop is abundant? The market quotation of rice, the size of the Hwaian tou as compared with the Tsingkiang tou, is of far more moment to the average countryman than the taking of Peking or the fall of the dynasty.

At present there are no troops passing through this city, but great quantities of ammunition are being shipped north. To judge by the marks on the boxes, most of it seems to be from Germany, though some is also marked "Birmingham." For ten days there have been hundreds of uncouth country carts camped on the edge of the town. They were sent down from Tientsin especially to bring up ammunition and arms. At night the scene presented from your correspondent's window is a picturesque one, the many lights of the wagoons and carters looking like soldiers' fires or a gipsy encampment. It is "an ill wind that blows no one any good;" and the poor countrymen are reaping a harvest from the war by hiring their dump carts to the Government at panic prices, Tls. 23 or 24 of silver a trip, instead of 12 or 15 strings of cash as in ordinary times. For some time the officials have been bidders and suppliants for conveyances. Several months ago, pursuing the usual official policy, they "squeezed" the boatmen and cartmen to such an extent that the latter went into hiding and not a cart or boat could be got for love or money. At last the officials had to issue proclamations and offer double prices to get the cartmen and boatmen to resume business.

There have been rumours on the street that Shanhaikwan has been taken by the Japanese. A minor official admitted this to your correspondent a few days ago.

The former Taotai, Sung, a Manchu who, it was rumoured, was cashiered several months ago, is expected in Tsing-kiang in a day or two to resume his former position.

NEWCHWANG.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCHWANG, December 26th, 1894.

On the 19th instant there was a considerable amount of excitement in the city, for on that afternoon news reached us that a fight had taken place between a part of the Japanese army at Kuangwangtsai, under Major Sonyama, and a part of General Sung's army, the number of the former being 5,000 odd, against the latter's 9,000. Anyhow, little damage was done, as the opponents were at least 5 li from one another. On the following morning, viz., the 20th instant, the Taotai's guard, while watching on the city walls, saw in the distance a great number of men; this was at once reported to the Taotai, who instructed Fu, now in charge of the likin office, to keep any outsiders from entering the gates. The crowd in the distance turned out to be 9,000 soldiers from Kaichow under a high military officer named Shû-kuang-tao, who had been ordered by General Sung to proceed without delay to Newchwang. Some of these braves entered the south gate, but luckily for the town Fu proved himself to be the right man in the right place, as he not only went for them, but got the lot to move northward. After a few hours had elapsed the Taotai called on the Commissioner; afterwards he mounted his milk-white steed, and with his usual retinue, accompanied by his friend Fu, proceeded to the gardens, a distance of 5 miles to the east of us, where he had the pleasure of an interview with Shû-kuang-tao. So far, so good.

At present, General Sung is at Newchwang, and General Ma is at Tienchwangtsi, which is situated a little to the north-west of Newchwang; according to native rumours these two great men have about 60,000 strong between them, and at any moment we may hear of a big encounter between the Japanese and Chinese. It is a case of a merry Christmas, but we poor Newchwang Johonnies, sincerely trust that General Sung will either make for Moukden or Shanhaikuan; latter preferred, but no choice.—N.C. Daily News.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

January 3rd, 1895.

Everything is quiet at present. Heavy firing was heard yesterday, but it is thought that General Sung was reviewing his troops. A messenger arrived yesterday from Haicheng; he reports that 10,000 Japanese troops are within the city and heavy guns are mounted on all sides, especially on the natural heights which surround the city.

The Japanese are suffering considerably from frost-bite, and it is said that one fourth of the army is incapacitated through it. As there is no fuel at Haicheng, the Chinese may possibly succeed in freezing out their enemies.

Two Japanese spies were captured outside the walls and are being dealt with. The head of a Chinese who lost his life through spreading false reports about the Japanese may be seen hanging at the East Gate.

A ball was held on New Year's eve and was quite a success.

All the foreign hongs are full of merchandise and treasure placed there by Chinese merchants. By the smiles one notices on the faces of the merchants, it appears to be a very profitable stroke of luck.—Mercury.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

PEKING, January 6th.

The Envoy to Japan, Chang Ying-hwan, had his farewell audience on the 5th of January, and will leave in a day or two for Tientsin. How he is to travel thence depends on the state of the ice. If he cannot embark at Taku he will try Shanhai-kwan.

His Excellency Liu Kun-yi hangs about Peking. He is a man of slow movements. His nominal destination is Manchuria, at the head of the army, but no one expects him to get further than Lutui.

Peace prospects seem to be exactly where they have always been. Colonel Denby, who was so confident in October of being able to bring about peace that he promised to have all the ladies back in Peking within fourteen days from the 25th of that month, now says, 5th January, that nothing will be done in the way of peace till the Japanese are in Peking—a very different story. This is a poor look-out for the two Envoys who are about to proceed to Japan, and if this be really all that American mediation is to do for China, Colonel Denby might just as well have left the Detring Mission to its own devices, for it could not have done less or worse. Ex-Secretary Foster is likely to make the best scores out of this business with his 5,000 gold dollars a month.

Peking never was quieter. The authorities still object to the Legation guards, and some of them are being smuggled in as private traveller's servants, etc. The diplomatic question has been relegated to the theatre of European diplomacy. The whole thing is fudge, if not fraud. What can Italy or Spain want with Legation guards? If their representatives are nervous they might transact all their business at Chefoo or Shanghai without loss to the human race.

The Chinese officials are in a state of delight over a magic invention which an American now in Peking tells them they can have for a fabulous sum of money. As it would annihilate the Japanese army without the tedious formality of bullets or arrows they consider it cheap at any price.—Shanghai Mercury.
